

Whatâ€™s the point of the trading cards? Are they a game of some sort?

There kind of isn't one actually. I think Tijger made them because he thought they were cool. (nervous laughter) It isn't a game or anything, at least I've never seen any rules or mention of it when at the company. No. Wait. I remember the story now... This company where he used to work at... someone quit and left behind a bunch of business cards. They were thrown into the garbage. So then Tijger picked the out of the trash and started drawing on the backs of them. That's right. That's how it happened.
