I'm very excited to launch our site today, even if it's a bit lacking in the grand features that we wanted.

First off allow me to introduce myself. I'm Tijger Tsou and this is my website. Flat City themed stuff is something I have been working on for a while and wanted to release to the world.

Our first line of products are our Original Series Trading Cards that I'm very proud to release. They're perhaps a bit hard to explain.

Think of what happens when cute is merged with disgusting, and somehow survives that tempering process. What remains is still somewhat cute, but has a newly enriched edgy side to offset its tooth-busting sweetness.

Some examples of these trading cards are below:

The eventual goal is to release a full range of products- toys, apparel, keychains, stationery type things- with the primary criteria being that they don't suck.

The site is still a bit limited in functionality right now, but I still very proud to have launched it.

What we currently have:

- Six-pack and Single pack Original Series cards for sale via PayPal "Buy It Now" buttons.
- A bulletin board forum.
- A basic, full checklist of cards in the Original Series.
- The basic infrastructure in place for moving forward!

What is on the plate for the very near future:

- A proper shopping cart and catalog (July 2007!)
- A searchable and interactive database of cards.
- More products (they are actively being worked on).
- A blog that is actually useful and entertaining!

But thank you for reading, and hope you enjoy your visit!
