I went to this year's event as an attendee to get a feel of things, and was pleasantly surprised! This was my first comic con show in what feels like a good ten years or so, and it was quite worth it. Lots of interestingly cool people were to be met- such as Antonio Clark of Bunnies on Fire Comics (Thanks again for the drawing!), Chris of ComicNinja , and the always friendly Richard Kiel.

Having seen what the shows are like firsthand, it's very motivating and exciting to join in this business. I am planning on making at least two appearances at trade shows this season- Firstly at the 2007 Steel City Comic Con during the July 28-29th weekend, and the 2007 Chicago Wizard World during August 10-12th. More details to come, once exhibition rights are all ironed out.

Meanwhile, some photos:
