

2007 Chicago Wizard World Conclusion

Contributed by Tijger Tsou
Monday, 13 August 2007
Last Updated Monday, 13 August 2007

We're back home in New York now, after a grueling trip, but it was sure worth it!

It was a really wonderful show for us, and we were glad to take part in such an amazing event!

The visitor turnout in Chicago was tremendous, and we're glad that people found our odd blend of humor easily digestible and entertaining. We really would like to thank everyone who came to our booth to chat and share ideas! It was a true pleasure to talented people in the comic field (in no particular order)

- Edmond Lee from EdsComix.com
- Adam Leser and Kristen Mita from Buhonics
- Tod and Corey Marie Parkhill from Young American Comics
- Matthew J. Fletcher, Laura Klein and Christopher Uminga
- Shlomo Goltz from Conartistry.net
- Matt Silady and his creation The Homeless Channel

The entrance of the show on Saturday&hellip;

Me at the Iron Peanut table, showcasing our Flat City products.

Taking a picture with Matthew J. Fletcher and Christopher Uminga.

Of course, a big thanks for the Wizard World Staff putting together another professional and smoothly run event, and in particular Mike Scigliano for helping us at Iron Peanut work in some last minute changes to our table!